Fall 2014

Fall Event: This Old Villa Saturday, September 27

Co-sponsored by FOHH and the Fairfax County Park Authority

1 to 4 p.m. Tours of Huntley and Family Architecture Activities

Embrace your inner architect! Have fun touring the 1825 Mason family summer home and outbuildings, local architectural gems, while learning about lunettes, dog-tooth cornices, fanlights, and other features of federal-period architecture. Enjoy architectural activities, including learning with Ascendly, a company that teaches children about engineering through LEGOS®. Children must be accompanied by an adult. Suggested donation, $5. Children 10 and under, free. Light refreshments provided.

2 to 3:30 p.m.

Lecture and panel discussion

*Attendees are encouraged to tour
the house at 1 p.m.*

C. Richard Bierce, AIA, whose involvement with the house spans more than 30 years, will talk about the site's architectural significance and discoveries made during his early forensic investigations. Stephen Ortado, a principal with Historic Structures and part of the restoration team, will review issues and interesting discoveries brought to light during the restoration process.

Directions on page 4. For more information call Huntley Meadows Park, 703.768.2525. ❖

Members-Only Tour: Fred W. Smith Library at Mount Vernon

Friday, October 3 • 10:30 a.m.

3600 Mount Vernon Memorial Highway, adjacent to the Mount Vernon Estate

Join other FOHH members at a free members-only tour of the Fred W. Smith National Library for the Study of George Washington. Stephen A. McLeod, manager of Library Programs and editor of Mount Vernon Ladies' Association: 150 Years of Restoring George Washington's Home, will lead members on a personal tour. He also will speak about Betsy Mason, wife of Thomson F. Mason and a member of the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association from 1872 to 1873, and the early work of the MVLA. Dedicated to safeguarding George Washington's personal collection of books and manuscripts, Library holdings include 1,500 additional 18th-century books and many important 19th-century newspapers, manuscripts, and documents.

Space is limited; RSVP to Ann Lindblom, lindblom@comcast.net,

Huntley Harvest Festival

Saturday, November 1 • 1 to 4 p.m.

Autumn is a time of change and preparation on any farm like Historic Huntley—harvesting, stockpiling food for winter, preparing the house, and storing equipment. At a forest like Huntley Meadows, animals spend the waning hours fattening up and squirreling away food, heading for warmer climates, or preparing dens for a long winter's sleep. As the air turns crisp and the light fades, autumn activities mark these changes and the ceaseless cycles of nature that shape our lives.

Celebrate the season on the farm and in the wood at the annual Huntley Harvest Festival! Friends and neighbors are invited to explore Historic Huntley during an afternoon filled with games—pumpkin ring toss or musical hay bales; crafts—make your own puppet; and refreshments. Join us for puppet shows and story time, meet costumed interpreters, play with Forest Fox and River Raccoon, and win prizes.

Entrance fee, $10 per person.

Children 4 and under, free.

President's Column: FOHH Moving Forward

by Todi Carnes

Such notable and longstanding structures as Huntley are not mere houses, but community touchstones of historical continuity and witness. In our last newsletter, Barbara Ballentine, immediate past president of FOHH, traced the highly successful 20-plus-year journey of FOHH in procuring the 2012 restoration and public opening of the Huntley villa and its closest outbuildings. Even as efforts towards restoration of Huntley's tenant house and ice well move forward, the opening of the villa's doors to the public marked the beginning of a new era for FOHH in assuring that this 19th-century landmark continues as a vibrant cultural heritage center in our own century and beyond.

The new era is marked by themed Spring and Fall Events. The Spring Event celebrates some aspect of Huntley's history. In concert with Civil War Sesquicentennial celebrations, this event has focused on Huntley's Civil War occupation by Union forces for the past two years. In recognition that Huntley was preserved for its illustration of Federal period architecture, the Fall Event promotes awareness of Huntley's architectural aspects.

The period also has witnessed new Fairfax County Park Authority programming. FOHH members have volunteered at many activities, including the Summer Social and the upcoming Huntley Harvest Festival. Dedicated FOHH members such as Terry Dahl (see Member Profile) directly interact with the public on behalf of Huntley by serving as greeters and tour docents at Saturday house tours from April through October. New volunteers always are welcome!

To further integrate Huntley into historic, architectural, and civic-minded communities, FOHH is looking to build ties and partner with local groups having those interests.

If you are a member of such a group, and believe that cross-pollination with FOHH might be fruitful, please let us know about that group.

Finally, being a community touchstone in the 21st century invariably means having a social media presence. While a tweet or two has been seen from the 19th-century's T.F. Mason, FOHH is searching for the Huntley fan who can truly bring Huntley (and T.F. Mason) into the modern media era.

Contact FOHH Membership Chair Barbara Ballentine at bbbalex@verizon.net to volunteer or to discuss partnering activities. ❖

Update: Tenant House Restoration

Fairfax County voters approved a bond to fund restoration of Huntley's tenant house in 2012. According to recently released Fairfax County Park Authority projections, project scoping for the restoration should be completed by the end of this year. The design phase will run from January to March 2015. The restoration is scheduled for completion in March 2016. ❖

Member Profile: Terry Dahl's Outstanding Volunteer Award

Twice a year Huntley Meadows Park staff recognize volunteers who have contributed in special ways. The key prize is the Ken Howard Volunteer of the Year Award, established in 1986, which this year went to Steve Lindblom, husband of FOHH board member Ann.

Three other awards were given at the summer volunteer party including one Geoffrey Cohrs, Site Coordinator, gave to FOHH volunteer Terry Dahl. This is what he said to highlight her work: "This volunteer has never sought the limelight; they show a quiet dedication that often goes unrecognized, but is certainly always appreciated. While they have been modest in their own appraisal of their skills and help, their commitment to Historic Huntley has been above and beyond. They have been ready to help when we've needed it, willing to provide their own insights, and always present a friendly face to our patrons and guests.

"This volunteer is a regular for our Saturday tours, helps out with our big events like the Summer Social, shows a keen desire to help preserve that house by helping us with maintenance, and has even volunteered to help with our camp field trips. Please join me in showing our deep appreciation for everything that Terry Dahl has done, she is this year's Outstanding Volunteer for Historic Huntley."

Terry has volunteered at Huntley Meadows Park for two years in several capacities. After years of driving by Huntley when it was surrounded by a chain-link fence, she was delighted to see it open to the public. While serving as a greeter, she welcomes visitors sitting under a tent outside the tenant house. She has endured rain, heat, and periods of quiet, all of which give her the opportunity to envision past events and enjoy the remote feel of Huntley even given its current suburban location.

We congratulate all the volunteers and staff make it the wonderful place we all enjoy so much! Awards sponsored by Friends of Huntley Meadows Park. ❖

Summer Internship: Tom Cuthbertson

I would like to thank members of FOHH for providing the support and funding for my summer internship opportunity. The open format of the internship allowed me to explore projects relevant to my own research interests. I was able to produce a historical narrative for the property, as well as a sample tour for the Docent Manual. I converted the Dorothy Butt interview to DVD for better preservation and added research materials to the collection at Huntley Meadows Park. This included the 1859 deed between Elizabeth C. Mason and her sons Arthur Pendleton and John Francis with the names of almost 70 enslaved individuals.

The ability to interact with a wider range of audiences in the educational programs, as well as through tours at Historic Huntley, has been a wonderful learning experience and has challenged me to expand my educational skill set. Thanks to FOHH, I am looking forward to applying the experience I have acquired through this internship in my public history career. ❖

Partnership: Groveton Historians:

This was the first year of the FOHH partnership with Groveton Elementary School. The Groveton Historians group included 19 fourth-grade students. Their goal was to research and learn about Thomson Francis Mason and Huntley, as well as to understand the impact of the famous Mason family on Virginia. To do this, students are learning:

- Research techniques using maps, letters, diaries, online research, and biographies
- What life was like in Fairfax County during the 18th and 19th centuries
- How the Civil War affected various Mason properties

An unrelenting winter forestalled earlier visits, so the Groveton Historians made their inaugural visit to Historic Huntley on April 2 and look forward to many more excursions. Meet some of our intrepid Historians on September 27 as they assist with This Old Villa activities. Be sure to introduce yourself to this next generation of Huntley friends. ❖

Many thanks to Lifetime Members!
